

ARTICLE APPEARED
ON PAGE D-6

WASHINGTON POST
20 May 1985

OBITUARIES

Gloria I. Manter MacGillivray,

57, a former geographer with the Central Intelligence Agency and a private pilot who was qualified to fly on instruments, died of cancer May 14 at Sibley Memorial Hospital.

Mrs. MacGillivray, who lived in Bethesda, was born in Washington. She grew up in Chevy Chase and Richmond. She graduated from the University of Kentucky and took a master's degree in geography at Clark University in Worcester, Mass.

She returned to the Washington area in 1950 and for the next few years worked for the CIA. She resigned to raise her family. In the 1960s, she gave piano lessons in her home.

Mrs. MacGillivray had been a troop leader with the Girl Scouts and a member of the Chevy Chase United Methodist Church, the Bannockburn Community and Swim Club, and the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association.

Survivors include her husband, George C. MacGillivray of Bethesda; three children, Jeffrey, of Westford, Mass., James, of Manassas, and Kathleen A. Parker of Wheaton; her mother, Inez Manter of Chevy Chase; a brother, Bennett Manter of Virginia Beach, Va., and two grandchildren.